WELCOME TO WKND

MART JUUL, NATIONAL FEATURES EDITOR

The holidays have arrived in the Hub and, right on cue, so has the cold and dreary winter weather. But don't let the frigid temperatures get you down, since there's so much to enjoy and be thankful for this year. From Thanksgiving feasts and Black Friday deals to tree lighting ceremonies and box-office blockbusters, there's plenty of ways to get into the holiday spirit and have fun with the family this weekend. See what's happening around the Hub and stay up-to-date at metro.us/things-to-do/boston.

GET LIT

After the Thanksgiving festivities have wrapped, it's time to gear up for the rest of the holiday season. Check out our guide to the various tree lighting ceremonies around Boston this year. For more, see page 4.

BLACK OUT

Don't be intimidated by the madness that comes with shopping on Black Friday. Get ready for all the sales and deals — plus all those aggressive shoppers — with our Black Friday survival guide. For more, see pages 6-7.

Dolph Lundgren is back as Ivan Drago in "Creed II." The action icon talks to Metro about returning to the "Rocky" franchise, getting back into the ring with Sylvester Stallone, and more. For more, see Pages 12:13.

OBAMA IN BOSTON

That's right, former first lady Michelle Obama is coming to the Hub this weekend. Get the details on her appearance and everything else happening around Boston over the Thanksgiving break. For more, see page 10.

TONY'S METRO MAGIC 2018

As we enter the season of giving, Metro asks that you donate to Tony's Metro Magic annual holiday toy drive to help underprivileged children in your community. You can donate by visiting metro.us/magic, clicking on the toy wish list link of your choice, and ordering via a secure payment system. Toys will then be distributed to local children in need.

The ultimate guide to the Hub's tree lighting ceremonies. marr JUUL

The holidays have arrived in the Hub and it's time to get into a festive spirit. After you've slept off your Thanksgiving feast, get ready to gear up for some winter fun. Kick off the holiday season by checking out one of these Boston Christmas tree lighting events this year.

Macy's Downtown Boston Tree Lighting Ceremony

Head Downtown this weekend to celebrate the holiday season with Macy's. The famed department store's annual tree lighting ceremony returns on Black Friday with family-friendly activities, plus performances by the Boston Children's Choir, Grammy-nominated singer Keri Hilson, indie rockers Heffron Drive and R&B artist Jaye Valentine. Mayor Marty Walsh and Santa Claus will also be on hand.

Nov. 23, 2 p.m., Macy's Downtown Boston, 450 Washington St., macys.com

Copley Square Tree

Lighting

The holiday fun returns to Copley Square on Monday night. The annual tree lighting ceremony will include light refreshments, plus muperformances sical by Mark Robertson, Children's Boston Chorus, the Boston Pops Brass Quintet and Berklee College of Music's Natalie Daniela Castro Diaz. Mayor Marty Walsh, NECN's Jenny Johnson and the one-and-only Santa Claus will be there, too.

Rembrandt van Rijn Self Portrait "Portrait of the Artist as a young man" C. 1634 Etching Size 2 x 1.8 inches

Stolen from the Isabella Stewart Gardner & Museum, Boston MA March 18, 1990

Taken with other Rembrandts, a Vermer and other works of art in the largest property theft in history. This was one of the first Rembrandts bought by Mrs. Gardner and is thought to have been the inspiration for her to create a Museum accessible to the public.

All that remains where the portrait once hung is a small empty gilded frame.

Hundreds of hours and thousands of dollars were spent in creating an exact rendition of Rembrandt's remarkable etching. This included a forensic study of several examples existing from museums around the country. Both ink and paper qualities were included in this study.

Nothing has been added!

Printed on Hahnemhi handmade paper, matted with an extra thick mat, and printed with the finest French ink (all archival) on 150-year-old Bureau of Printing and Engraving Intagilo Press.

Own or Gift this Fine Art intaglio Etching and enjoy what has been relegated to memory.

Same image size as the original, matted 5 x 7 inches ready for framing. Signed and numbered, only 100 etchings will be printed.

Don't let the shopping rush beat you, KATELYN CHEF

Is it us, or does Black Friday seem to creep into our lives earlier and earlier each year? Before the turkey has a chance to cool and the mashed potatoes have a second to digest, we're out the door, standing in checkout lines trying to buy some holiday cheer — for a good deal, of course.

metr#

Whether you love Black Friday or wish to sleep right through it, there are perks to shopping this day of deals as well as ways to survive it. Never fear, we have a few tips and then it's back to the turkey for us.

Plan ahead

While the bird is roasting in the oven and the pecan pie is cooling on the windowsill, make a game plan (a.k.a. list) of all the places you want to shop — e.g. Target, Best Buy, Walmart, Amazon, and so on.

Whether your list is handwritten or typed in your phone's note section, this is a good way to organize all of your hopeful purchases. Many websites such as Target, Amazon, Walmart and Best Buy have their 2018 Black Friday ads online right now. Most stores online will run deals from Friday, Nov. 23, through "Cyber Monday," Nov. 26. Another helpful website to keep open in your tabs is BestBlackFriday.com. This particular website has all the major retail store ads as well as the most recent ads/deals and discount updates.

App assistants Apps can be your most helpful assistant. Today is probably not the day to go live on Instagram as there are other apps to assist you with your Black Friday shopping.

According to a recent article on the website Nerdwallet.com, apps such as Shop-Savvy and Santa's Bag can help you save some dough. For savvy deal-finders, ShopSavvy pulls and gathers prices and current deals from well-known stores, so you can compare and save. Like Target's Cartwheel app, there is a barcode scan option so you can scan your chosen item and see the best place (and price) to buy it.

Santa's Bag is your "Santa's little helper" app! This magical app allows you to set a budget, and it will keep you in that budget so when the new year comes, you won't be bogged down will bills.

Gift sets

Purchase gifts in sets. Frankie Scanlon, founder of Gustus Vitae, a gourmet salt and artisan spice seller/creator, exclusively shared his Black Friday insights with Metro.

Frankie says: "Black Friday will always be, in my opinion, something that is important for both retailers and consumers alike. While

For instance, when we put together a gift set from Gustus Vitae, we know our consumer is looking for the convenience of a thoughtful gift, already put together!"

> Map things out

When prepping to shop, know what you really want and what you can possibly hold out for. If there's a really good deal, get it, because once it's gone it might be a while (past Christmas) before it's back in stock.

Friday is gift sets.

What's the point in go-

Save receipts

At some point, you may have to return an item for a lower price or just to get your full refund back. This is where your receipts come in handy. Apps like Expensify can digitally scan your receipts (yes, from your phone, a la something called SmartScan) and save all the details.

Shoeboxed is another receipt saver app that is your virtual receipt shoebox.

If you prefer to keep it old school, make yourself an envelope titled "holiday receipts" and have it be the place where you keep all your gift purchases. Keep the envelope in your purse, car, desk — you name it — for quick and easy return access.

Where to shop online for Small Business Saturday, KATELYN CHEF

Right on the heels of Black Friday is Small Business Saturday, which has quickly become a beloved American shopping holiday. On this day, Americans support small retailers mostly in their local neighborhoods as well as communities.

However, in keeping with the times, online shopping is one of the most preferred ways to holiday shop - i.e., places such as Amazon, Ürban Outfitters, Target and others. However, you can still support small businesses and independent artisans while shopping online.

We've rounded up a few of our favorite "small" online shops to keep in mind on Nov.

Crawford Creek Rustics

This is an Etsy shop with one-of-a-kind finds for your home and also holiday gifts. In a recent collaboration with blogger and TV personality Jillian Harris, they created the most delightful charcuterie board and serving tray. etsy.com/shop/Crawford-CreekRustics

Chappy Wrap

Giving a gift that is New England- or American-made is one special gift to receive. Enter the coastal blanket business Chappy Wrap, which is a mother-anddaughter-operated small business. Their goal is to "aim to spread comfort to everyone, everywhere with the best blankets in the world." It's true. their blankets are soft, large and come in a variety of prints that will match everyone's style on your list. chappywrap.com

Handmade by Chris N Kris

Another Etsy shop that has a beautiful part in Jillian Harris' Etsy holiday collaboration is Handmade by Chris N Kris. Looking to bestow someone with the handmade gift of comfort this season? Their knit chenille heart blanket (with pompoms) is the purchase

you are looking for. etsy.com/shop/Handmade-ByChrisNKris

KJP

Who wants a toastycoasty, coastal-inspired holiday? Kiel James Patrick, a.k.a. KJP, the jewelry and apparel lifestyle brand based out of Rhode Island. should be on your online shopping list. They have everything from handcrafted sailor rope bracelets to flannel wrap dresses for women and plaid flannels tops for men. Yes, this is another representation of proudly American-made products. kieljamespatrick.com

Portland Leath-

Leather goods that are handmade in Oregon are what the Etsy shop Portland Leather is all about. Looking for something for him? The personalized groomsman gift Dopp kit (with customizable monogram) is what you're seeking, then. etsy.com/shop/PortlandLeather

Packing a punch

Dolph Lundgren talks "Creed II" and what to expect from Drago's comeback, MOLLY GIVEN

The infamous and loved character of Ivan Drago, played by Dolph Lundgren, makes a comeback in the new movie "Creed H." Audiences will get to see Drago in a whole new light as not just a fighter, but also a father as he prepares his son to fight Adonis Creed. We sat down with Lundgren to talk about the legacy of Drago, his role in the new film and if he and the Italian Stallion will be back in the ring.

What were your initial thoughts when you found out that Drago was making a comeback? Well, I didn't think I was going to play him again. I was surprised when I heard about it from Stallone, I didn't want to do it. I wasn't sure if I should do it, if I should meddle with that iconic guy in those red shorts back in that midst of time somewhere. I decided when I saw the script, I thought, "Yeah, what a great script! Wow, this is a really great role, it's amazing." So a lot of the preparation was more emotional, but I did train for it because, you know, Florian. I mean. I met Florian. I knew he was going to be a big guy, but he was really big. So I thought I should get in shape so I can throw him around a little bit because I have to in the script. So most of the preparation was dramatic, but there was physical training, too.

Florian Munteanu steps into the ring as Viktor Drago.

At the end of "Rocky IV," Ivan was defeated by the Italian Stallion. Now, Ivan's son Viktor Drago is taking on Adonis Creed, who is trained by Rocky Balboa. What can you tell us about Drago's motivation for pushing a fight between his son and Rocky's boxer?

Rocky's boxer?
The motivation for Drago is after he lost the fight like you mentioned, everything went downhill quickly. His wife left him. He probably got kicked out of his nice apartment in Moscow. He was sent off to the countryside somewhere and started drinking. Everything fell apart, and he somehow landed somewhere and got himself together, but he had his kid, and the kid's mother leaves him very quickly, and his son grows up to be a fighter. I think Drago has felt betrayed by the Soviet Union, now Russia, and of course by America well, actually, Rocky Balboa. It's all his fault that any of this happened. But then the Russians have betrayed him, and he hasn't really dealt with the fact that had he won the fight, had he been a better fighter, none of this would have happened. He doesn't want to think of that, so now he has this young kid that he's going to use to get what's his, no matter what has to be done. We have to go over there to America, we have to win this fight. I don't care if my kid dies doing it. That's kind of the setup of the picture.

on a Rocky movie with Stallone, Sly famously said that you put him in the intensive care unit for a week. First, how did all that go down and will you two get into any tussles this time around for "Creed II"?

OK, yeah. So the first time I worked with him, he ended up in the intensive care unit, apparently

The last time you worked ended up in the intensive care unit, apparently because they claim I hit him too hard. Look, I just did what I was told to do because, you know, I was a kid and he was my boss, so I hit him in the body fundgren is back as Ivan Drago in "Creed II." METRO GOLDWIN MAYER PICTURES / WARNER BROS. PICTURES

a few times. I felt bad about it. I mean, I got two weeks off, so it was kind of cool I could go out and party. I was only 27, but I did feel bad about it. I've heard about it all of these years. Obviously, yes, in the script there are some altercations between us, a little bit of a punch-up. So there's a physical little situation between us. That was fun to shoot. Stallone was really tired. He had been doing some big emotional scenes, and he came walking in in a bad mood, and I had to do this fight scene with him. I felt sorry for him because he's 10 years older than me and I was feeling tired and it was the middle of the night, but we worked it out. and it was kind of funto be in there and throw punches with him again. It brought back a lot of memories. In all of the "Expendables" movies we did, we never fought each other, we always fought other people, so it was really cool.

Considering everything going on in the world today between the U.S. and Russia, is now the perfect time for Drago's return and for this film to be coming out?

I think it's a great time, of course. Stallone is very smart. Russians are again becoming a little more of our enemies here, and in this picture, my character, like I said, he's not a big fan of Russia. He thinks they are just as bad as everyone else. He wants to take out his revenge on them. But I think there's an interest in Russians as characters now more than before because Russia is really the only other nation that can sort of maybe kick America's ass, or at least we think they can. If you are the big guy on the block, it's the other big guys that you have to look out for, and I think that's what is happening. So I think it's the perfect time to bring Ivan Drago back and make the Russians someone we can fear again.

"Creed II" is now in theaters.

Thanksgiving travel 2018: Best and worst times to leave Boston

MassDOT is preparing for an onslaught of travelers around the holiday.

Everyone knows that Thanksgiving travel is hectic, and for Thanksgiving 2018, the roads may be even worse, officials warn, as AAA predicts the most New England travelers for the holiday in more than a decade.

Nationwide, more than 54.3 million Americans are expected to hit the roads, rails or air for 2018 Thanksgiving travel, according to AAA, all journeying 50 miles or more from home for the holiday. That's a 4.8 increase in travelers compared to last year.

Boston drivers will see some of the worst delays during their Thanksgiving travel, according to the association, with nearly quadruple normal drive times due to traffic.

But when exactly will Thanksgiving travel be the worst (or best) for Boston drivers? Here's a look.

Data company INRIX worked with AAA to crunch the numbers around the worst Thanksgiving travel times across the country, based on historical data from the automobile association and recent travel trends.

For Boston, Tuesday afternoon is actually the worst time to start your Thanksgiving travel, per AAA.

The organization predicts that the worst hot spot specifically for holiday traffic will be 1-495 South, exits 41 to 33. Thanksgiving travel for Boston drivers is expected to take 3.5 times longer

"More people drive over the holidays and that means more people crash over the holidays, and we're concerned about that."

Jeff Larason, director of highway safety than usual.

Google Maps also took a look at Thanksgiving travel and traffic trends. According to their information, the worst time to leave is going to be Wednesday at 3 p.m. The worst time to head back to Boston from your holiday is Friday at 3 p.m.

Best times for Boston Thanksgiving travel

So when should you actually hit the road to ensure that your Thanks-giving travel is as easy as possible? Google says you should head out on Thanksgiving Day at 6 a.m.

When heading back after the holiday, give yourself a bit more time to digest all that turkey and head home on Sunday at 6 a.m., per Google.

Massachusetts 2018 Thanksgiving travel tips from MassDOT

These next few days before Thanksgiving are going to be some of the busiest travel days of the year, said MassDOT Highway Administrator Jonathan Gulliver at a press conference earlier this week, and so officials are stepping up to help make things easier for Thanksgiving travelers across the state.

With traffic volumes expected to increase as much as 15 to 20 percent across the state, Gulliver is encouraging residents to plan their trips ahead and use Mass511 to find the best route and time for their Thanksgiving

travel

Massachusetts weather could impact travel as well, with a wintry mix expected to hit over the weekend. There are resources to deal with that weather, Gulliver said, but drivers should still be extra-cautious as they hit the roads.

"More people drive over the holidays and that means more people crash over the holidays, and we're concerned about that," said Jeff Larason, director of highway safety. "There are several specific things that happen that we are focused on. Number one, phones — put them away, don't drive with them. The other two things that are of concern. on the roads are impairment and drowsiness."

With recreational marijuana sales starting this week, Larason reminded Massachusetts that marijuana does count as an impairment. Concerning drowsiness, MassDOT service plazas will offer free coffee from 10 p.m. Thursday through 5 a.m. Friday to help any tired drivers on their Thanksgiving travels. The HOV lane will be open early on Tuesday (2 p.m.) and Wednesday (1 p.m.) to accommodate more drivers as well.

A robot will help a local nonprofit sort 25,000 Thanksgiving pies

Community Servings is turning its old-school Pie in the Sky fundraiser into a futuristic bake sale.

It takes a lot of manpower to ship out 25,000 Thanksgiving pies, and as Community Servings volunteers tackle that task for the nonprofit's annual Pie in the Sky fundraiser, they'll be getting some robotic help.

Chuck the Robot, Waltham-based startup 6 River Systems, will help hundreds of volunteers process all these Thanksgiving pies inside an exhibit hall at Hynes Convention Center on Tuesday.

Chuck (named for the

In a warehouse, Chuck

autonomously moves around, improving productivity by leading people who pick packages off of shelves to the product in the most efficient route. This reduces extra walking back and forth, he said, and then those packages can also be placed on the robot, freeing up workers' hands.

Those packages will be Thanksgiving pies.

The partnership came about thanks to mutual friends at 6 River Systems and Community Servings, a nonprofit that delivers medically-tailored meals to the chronically ill.

"They thought, well how could you take this warehouse robot which moves products from A to B and help automate some of the manual work that's happening in the convention center, such as moving pies from quality inspection to where they're picked up for outgoing [delivery], Glynn said.

Pie in the Sky is a massive event for Community Servings. This year marks the 26th iteration of the fundraiser, which raises about $800,000 for the nonprofit, allowing it to continue to deliver 650,000 made-fromscratch meals a year.

"Over 100 different people, from restaurants, caterers and hotels, bake pies for us, generously donating them to us," said Darcy Pfeifer of Community Servings. "We have

Residents make first retail marijuana purchases

Retail marijuana sales began on Tuesday in Massachusetts, and after quite a wait — at the legislative level and in line Tuesday morning - residents were ready.

Shoppers lined up early at the only two currently operational retail pot shops in the state: Cultivate Holdings in Leicester and New England Treatment Access (NETA) in Northampton.

Northampton Mayor David Narkewicz made the first retail marijuana purchase at NETA Tuesday morning. Spectators counted down the seconds to 8 a.m., when sales began at the pot shop, at which point Narkewicz handed over cash for a marijuana-infused chocolate bar.

"I'm proud that Northampton is playing a role in this historic day," he told the crowd after making his purchase, "ending some 80 years of prohibition here in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and moving in to a new, modern era where we have safe, tested, well-regulated adult use of marijuana."

Though the cashier did remind Narkewicz to "go low and slow," he doesn't plan to imbibe. Even though he bought the symbolic first retail marijuana item at NETA, he said he plans to preserve the THC chocolate bar as a piece of history.

Others certainly plan to take full advantage of retail marijuana offerings in Massachusetts. Soon more pot shops should be open across the state.

Fried Brussels Sprouts with Apple Gastrique and Candied Pumpkin Seeds

The judge on Food Network's "Ultimate Thanksqiving Challenge" puts quite the spin on brussels sprouts with this epic side dish. "I love this dish because who doesn't love fried brussels sprouts? The crunchiness and the saltiness from the sprout combined with the sweet tanginess of the apple cider gastrique really bring it home for me! The nutty finish of the pumpkin seeds add another layer of flavor that's just really nice."

Ingredients:

- 1 lb. brussels sprouts
- 3 cups vegetable oil
- 1 recipe apple gastrique
- 1 recipe candied pumpkin seeds

Directions:

Prepare the brussels sprouts: trim the stem end of the brussels sprouts and out a cross about 1/8th inch deep in the top of the sprouts.

Cook the brussels sprouts: Heat the vegetable oil in a sauce

FOQO METWORK pot until a drop of water sizzles in the oil. Fry the brussels in 2 batches until very crispy. Drain brussels on a paper towel and sprinkle with salt. Immediately put brussels in a mixing bowl with the apple gastrique and toss until the brussels are well coated with the sauce. Divide

Sausage Combread Stuffing

Another interesting take on stuffing. The "Worst Cooks in America" host takes things up a notch by adding sausage to the fan-favorite dish. "This sausage and combread stuffing is a huge crowd-pleaser! It's sweet, savory and finishes up with a great herbiness - a little something for everyone. And it can be made ahead!"

Directions:

Anne

Burrell

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees F.

3 to 4 cups chicken stock

Coat a large saute pan with olive oil, add the onions and celery and saute over to medium heat. Season with salt and cook until the vegetables start to become soft and are very aromatic. Add the sausage and cook until the sausage begins to brown. Stir in the garlic and saute for another 1 to 2 minutes. Add the walnuts, sage and rosemary and cook for another minute, then remove from heat.

In a large bowl mix together the combread, cranberries, and the sausage mixture. Add chicken stock and knead with your hands until the bread is very moist, actually wet. Taste to check for seasoning and season with salt, if needed, and transfer to an ovenproof dish.

Bake the stuffing until it is hot all the way through and is crusty on top, about 30 to 35 minutes. MMMMM._stuffing!

What to watch for as Pats face Jets

The Patriots will take on the Jets for the first time in 2018 this Sunday at the Meadowlands.

JULIAN EDLOW

After watching Monday Night Football between the Chiefs and Rams, it's obvious the Patriots have some work to do coming out of the bye week if they want to contend with those types of teams in the postseason. New England's first task will be a road game against the Jets, and while it may seem like a layup on the surface as 9.5-point favorites, let's remember the Pats are an extremely unimpressive 2-3 on the road this

Here are three things to watch for when the Patriots take on the Jets on Sunday (1 p.m., CBS).

Will the Patriots play down to their competition?

The Patriots have struggled with this at times this season, but it's generally highlighted when they play a divisional game on the road. While New England managed a 25-6 win in Buffalo back in Week 8, that game entered the fourth quarter as a 12-6 grinder. The Bills were also driving in the red zone to narrow the lead to a onepossession game when Devin McCourty took an interception 84 yards the other way to break the game open.

This sets up as a similar divisional road game. While the Patriots should blow the doors off the Jets on paper, it's going to be a tougher spot than we perceive it to be.

Important time to gain some momentum on the road You could make the aron the road this season, with the three losses coming by an average of 17 points. While defeating the 3-7 Jets seems probable (NE is -450 on the moneyline), the Jets' 2-3 home record is identical to the Pats' 2-3 road record, with solid wins over the Colts and Broncos.

> While beating the Jets wouldn't mean all that much to the Patriots on the surface, they need to get some momentum before some far more challenging road tests. New England returns home to face the Vikings in Week 13 before a pair of tough road games in Miami and Pittsburgh. A loss to New York would destroy confidence ahead of an important stretch away from home. The bottom line is that this team needs to find ways to win on the road if they want to have a chance at the road to the AFC running through Foxborough.

Establishing Rob Gronkowski

Gronk has missed three total games this season, the last two coming before the bye week. When he takes the field on Sunday against the Jets, it will have been four full weeks since he last played in a game. Obviously, his 29-448-I line through seven games is not your typical Gronk stat line, but this team needs its top target if it's going to compete for a Super Bowl.

Brady has attempted 76 passes during Gronk's two-game absence, 43 of them in the direction of Josh Gordon and Julian Edelman. Part of Brady's uncharacteristic stretch of homing in on certain plays rather than spreading the ball around has been the lack of presence at tight end - just three of those 76 passes were targeting a tight end (Dwayne Allen twice, Jacob Hollister once).

Gronk has been injured for or during three of the Patriots' last four matchups against the Jets, but when healthy, he's had his way in this matchup throughout his career. Excluding games sat out or exited due to injury, Gronk has averaged 85.1 yards and a touchdown in his last eight games against New York.

WEEKEND, NOVEMBER 21-25, 2018

MetroBet NFL advice for Week 12

Expect the Patriots to coast on Sunday.

MetroBet takes a look at two key games on the Sunday slate.

New England Patriots (-9.5) at New York Jets Moneyline: Patriots -415, lets +345

Betting Total: points

The Jets, particularly on offense, have regressed badly over the last month. They've averaged a paltry 10.75 points per game over their last four contests. A less-than-100 percent Sam Darnold potentially returning off a bye week won't solve all their problems.

The Patriots should be highly motivated off an embarrassing loss to the Josh Gordon was targeted a season-high 12 times in the Patriots' last outing.

Titans going into their bye week. Prior to that 10-point debacle, Tom Brady and company averaged 35.5 points per game over their previous six contests. New York's pass rush (26th in the league at 22 sacks) isn't potent enough to slow Brady down.

New England continues to be a reliable bet, going 16-6 against the spread in their last 22 road games. By contrast, the Jets have failed to cover in four of their last five contests. This is a big number, but the Patriots should win comfortably.

Prediction: Patriots win, 30-13

The play: Patriots -9.5

New York Giants at Philadelphia Eagles (-6) Moneyline: Giants +205, Eagles -245

Betting Total: 46 points The Eagles dominated the Giants on a quickturnaround Thursday night game on Oct. 11, but that performance is an outlier in what's looking more and more like a lost season for the defending champions. Even Carson Wentz was dragged down into the muck last Sunday as he tossed three INTs (and no TDs) against a vulnerable Saints defense in a disastrous 48-7 loss.

The Giants, meanwhile, are in the midst of a good run. They beat the 49ers and Bucs in consecutive weeks, albeit by just seven points combined, but the offense is finally beginning to click. Saquon Barkley shredded Tampa Bay to the tune of 142 rushing yards and two TDs last week. Odell Beckham Jr. has been as effective as ever since the Philly game, averaging 17.75 yards per reception over his last four outings. The Eagles' defense is decaying by the week, so they could have a hard time containing New York, even at The Linc.

However, the Giants' defense will keep Philly in the game. They've allowed at least 350 yards in eight straight games. Wentz is too good not to bounce back with a respectable performance in Week 12. But with the Eagles being 1-4 against the spread in their last five home games, and the Giants being 4-1 against the spread in their last five road tilts, the right play is to grab the six points with "Big Blue."

Prediction: Eagles win, 27-24

The play: Giants +6

The National Center of Afro-American Artists proudly presents the 48th season of Langston Hughes' Black Nativity. Based on text from the Gospel of St. Luke and interwoven with black vernacular narration, the song-play is dedicated to women and men of "good will" from all traditions. Its lively music is enthusiastically performed by children and adults and its dramatic dance uplifts the spirit of all.
